

ZULF CLAIMS THAT NEW YORK TIMES AND ECONOMIST ARE TRUSTWORTHY ON MANY THINGS BUT TURN INTO WAR PROPAGANDA ON OTHERS

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

Noam Chomsky wrote Manufacturing Consent about a propaganda model for New York Times and Economist and other major newspapers long ago. It's too complicated. I have a simpler intuitive theory that I adhere to. This is that New York Times and Economist are essentially conscientious only on things where people in the West have easy times double-checking. Beyond that, especially when anything in the East is concerned, they will side with war propaganda. They will just repeat anti-communist propaganda from the 1950s repackaged. They will consider China authoritarian more than America when the Democratic life in China is much more satisfactory than in America by Democracy Perception Index. It's a game they play. They will jingle jangle war jingoism the moment they can and just totally spread lies and disinformation. They have no shame or integrity at all when they talk about Eastern countries.
