

MY NOBILITY IS SO MUCH HIGHER THAN BILL GATES IT IS A LANDSLIDE

My sense of right and wrong includes a sense that Natural Rights of all people everywhere ought to be secured and I have no record of ever even attempting to violate Natural Rights of anyone. Now this is ingrained in me from early childhood, and I learned about issues of injustice of various peoples from my studies. So for example in 1988 I was so upset that our history teacher at John Adams High School was doing 'pros and cons of British colonialism in India' that I put all my books in my bag and just walked out of the class and took a long walk and did not return to school at all. In 2003-4 I was so upset about our wars in Middle East I had joined International Socialist Organisation mostly out of my natural Conscience, and I sold newspapers for $1 regarding torture of prisoners in Abu Ghraib and attended anti-war rallies and had discussions about how to bring people around to great horrors and injustices of the war. I have admired Eleanor Roosevelt and Mohandas Gandhi and Martin Luther King Jr. and Nelson Mandela for their great efforts at bringing justice to a barbaric age. My sense of justice is refined, and not racial. I have spent large proportions of money while on disability during the Texas flood event that left many people stranded. A natural sense of universal justice ingrained in me is obviously expected of any noble man, and I am classically noble.

Bill Gates is exceptional in modern civilisation in not having any noble sentiments for natural rights and justice at all. So I am superior to him in nobility by default.
