

PROBLEMS OF AMERICA

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

I know that American whites have various denigrating views about immigrants but I never gave a damn. You see immigrants think of most Americans as dumb hicks who are stupider than any other people they can imagine but try to keep a polite front because they're dangerous and violent when provoked. I am just much more American than most of these white people too because I've been homeless here, and I am urban. I don't give a damn how many generations they have been in America, really. American white people have some extraordinary good skills at thinking about their life in terms of a geography that is spectacular, but most American whites are just not as socially adjusted as most people from the old world. They seem unable to handle fashion and colours very well at all. Nothing says "American" more than the gaudy and tasteless mismatch of colours in an Airport. They say about me "Alien Kid" but that's wrong. Permanent Residency is guaranteed American citizenship, and I could have gotten it 20 years ago, but I never bothered because I was busy. I am literally fifty times more aware of my American-ness than most white Americans because they are not as deeply connected to US Declaration Preamble. I am in a bad situation because Bill Gates got between me and my $620 million. My money. Otherwise I would get comfortable with urban San Francisco.

So the problem is that human nature has problems with familiarity and comfort. It's quantitative. I am an Asian-American, and so white Americans will have higher discomfort by natural feeling of home. To them, I am a guy in their living room who does not seem to fit their comfort. Seems like a guy who will not stay, like a plumber in a home that a kid sees waking up. Well that's not how I see it. I am here to stay, and I am not hostile to white Americans at all, but they are going to be not as sophisticated mostly in their cultivation and education as myself. They can be as denigrating in their views as me but I am a Princetonian with high probability of many years of more study than them. I will also have 99th percentile of IQ to white people by measurement. I am generally going to be polite and respectful to most people but it's not that difficult to have denigrating views by most immigrants. Asia and Europe are generally better and avoiding cultivation of denigration than American white people because those may not have been as important in the New World.
