

STOP WANTING THINGS THAT ARE NOT IN YOUR CONTROL

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

You know, when I was five years old, I was quite fond of standing in the sun. I loved how the sun's rays touched my bare feet. And the whole universe was bright and fresh. I was then still under the illusion that whatever I want, I could just ask someone to get it for me. I could want the Sun and Moon and the stars and maybe I could ask my father or grandfather and they would get it for me. But maturity showed that this was not the case. I could want trillions, five islands, all the most lovely ladies of the world and a trip to another galaxy on a magic carpet. Those are reveries after an age and we have much clearer ideas about what sorts of things we can want and have success. The principle that probably was already clear to me by seven or eight was that there are some sort of rules of entitlement that allowed me to receive only some and not all things I want. For example if I wanted a nice watch with colourful band and a Mickey Mouse, or a nice new pair of sneakers I would need to wait for my birthday and judiciously charm people who had easy means to acquire them, and then voila these things would be mine.

Someone just asked me if I want vast influence. Well I am 49 now, dear inquisitive people, and I am far past wanting all sorts of things beyond my control for roughly 42 years, maybe a bit lower. No that's not in my control. It is up to the one who is influenced and not myself whether I get the influence. All people of Earth have their option to be influenced, or not. I do not take responsibility for their decisions. I will not come to their homes and sit next to their dying bodies when they are influenced and that poisoned them to death. So I have no interest in wanting to influence them. I am no longer five years old.

1. FRUSTRATION OF BEING UNDERSTOOD IN PRIMITIVE ANGELIC WORLDS

Look, I am an Archangel of Heaven. I do not use the word "Devil" at all. It is meaningless to me. I do use "Demon" and that is very well-understood to me. I have been wiping out and being in conflict with Demons for billions of years. I know Demons better than everyone on this entire planet. One time I was having a perfectly civilised and productive life in one world, with billions in population, far more advanced world than Earth. Demons blew up the star and everyone including myself died. We had no notice. I was cursing Demons for a long long time after my death.
