

ZULF'S VIEW OF THE WORLD TO AMERICAN WHITE PEOPLE

My fellow American White People,

I will tell you a particular and simple story of the world. You might find the story simplistic but it will give a sense of some of the issues that I understand quite well. You see, the twentieth century has two parts, naturally determined. The first is the part to Second World War; the second part is Cold War to 1989. In the first part the issues were about hegemonic power competition, and you know the result. United States gained hegemonic power and turned around and began arms race and ideological conflict with Soviet Union. Then Capitalism and Democracy were the winning ideology. Muslims did not hijack anything on 9/11. There, you had some neoconservative War Plans in Middle East developed in 1990s that were triggered by a sabotage on September 11, 2001. The idea was to extend ideological struggle with a revival of Crusades. This was a miserably bad idea for many reasons. It was strategic blunder of monumental proportions in my view for us. My parents and history is Muslim but from India and not Middle East. But I am Asian-American so this is not personal really.

A way of seeing what has to happen next is not ideological but 'natural'. Europe had accepted genuinely the universalist values that we, America, propagated. The UN Universal Declaration of Human Rights was the natural evolution of US Declaration of Independence Preamble we are all familiar with – all men are created equal with natural rights that governments are instituted to secure. This became international law with Eleanor Roosevelt presiding in 1948.

Partly the disaster of turning to Crusades after Cold War is that Crusades are a much older form than the Romantic foundations of our Nation, and this affected the Western population adversely as Medieval European mindset was given a strong push domestically. So the neoconservatives were rather strategically inept. United States of America is an Enlightenment-Romanticism creation, and the dangers to the country by turning to Crusades was not even evaluated before execution based on an Israeli sabotage to trigger wars. America was much more damaged by these wars internally than Middle Easterners were. We lost in Afghanistan and were repelled after two decades.

These sorts of geopolitical plays hurt us far more than any of the glib Washington strategists have any intellectual capacity to comprehend. They believe that things are simpler than they are. Human Civilisation has existed for roughly seven thousand years. We are a nation of age 250, a blink of an eye in the long history of Civilisation.

America is a young Civilisation. The turn to tribal strife after 9/11, Crusades, is the reason for racial turmoil rise from the depths of history again to trouble our lands. Our institutions are racially biased without question. But our development is not exactly the same as Europe at all or Asia. They are much older Civilisations. They are not as willing to be racial as we are. Europe's history is marred and scarred with tribal strife and bloodshed. They will not comply with us if they sense that we bring back bad memories.

We must return to sanity of our Enlightenment-Romantic foundations for all else will lead to the twilight of the American Civilisation.
