

SHOULD THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA BE DISSOLVED OR STAY?

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

The United States of America is a Multi-Ethnic Classical Liberal Democratic Republic. Let's see. It was a British Colony before 1776. Then we have had 245 years of existence. It is not a nation with a long organic history. The laws and customs of United States of America were founded by quite brilliant men a quarter of a millenium ago. I am an American. I am no less or more American than any other American in a way, from the point of view of the United States Constitution and Laws, I am certainly no less American than any other American. I am much more American in my convictions than most Americans because my convictions align perfectly with the Declaration of Independence Preamble. I hold these truths to be self-evident that all men are created equal with Natural Rights of Life, Liberty, and Pursuit of Happiness and governments are instituted among men to secure them. I deeply agree with this, and I believe strongly with deep convictions that this is true for all people born everywhere on Earth, that all are created equal and all have Natural Rights endowed by their Creator that are not granted by others – their parents, their local biker gangs, their local governments, their religious orthodoxy but their Creator. American Education ought to cultivate the conviction deeply but does not always succeed. In my case it is my natural conviction, so I am American in a deep sense, much deeper than paperwork. Many people in America feel their American-ness is more privileged than mine. They are not even remotely close to how deeply American I am. I am not just talking about White Nationalists or even more vile creatures than any political stripe such as Bill Gates. I am talking about ordinary civilised educated liberals and conservatives in America. Their American-ness is watery and tepid and lukewarm compared to mine. It's not that I am more passionate about America than them. It's that I just have deep harmony with the Romantic Idealists who founded America, men whose hopes and outlook and heart are resonant to me more than many Americans of twentieth and twenty first century, whose American-ness is not universalist and deep in their soul but more historical, more about history of their family, social colours of their life in America, passions for bombing some countries with ra-ra and jingoism. Those things are not as American as mine.

So when I look at America, I am almost unique in being more like the Founders and I ask myself, so here we have a nice country, not particularly old as these sorts of things go. For 245 years the founders were hoping for a vibrant civilisation of people whose identity would be American and who held the equality at creation and Natural Rights of all people everywhere as sacred. That was their hope and their hope is not secret because they wrote down their hope as the foundations of the nation.

The only sort of people who look sideways, up, down, and stretch the interpretation of clear texts are people who are not really all that American. Maybe some people say, "well, that's nice fluff but in reality America is about whatever will make me more money and fuck the rest of it. I will have a fleet of yachts and mansions, and America is really about bombing. I will bomb bomb here and bomb bomb there, here a bomb there a bomb, everywhere a bomb bomb bomb and that is what America really is." No. That's wrong. Because people put in work in 1776 to found the country. If America is what these people say, then the founders, who were quite bright and articulate would have all this in the Preamble. They did not do that.

1. US SHOULD END IF US EXECUTIVE BRACH CANNOT ENFORCE LAWS AGAINST BILL GATES

The United States of America is an experiment of 245 years. The founders of the country invented a system, based on whatever wisdom from the past of Europe and Asia and elsewhere combined with their own creative genius and understanding of human nature. They stated their goals clearly for what that system was designed to deliver. They said, we want our particular invention to secure everyone's natural rights. So they set up a Legislative Branch. They set up a Judicial Branch. And they set up an Executive Brach. Then US Declaration of Independence stated their fundamental axioms which include the preamble. And so the system is tested for 245 years.

Now if the laws are any good, then Executive Branch ought to always execute them, and the 330 million Americans ought to enjoy good and productive life, and everything is great.

What happens when one monstrous criminal is always breaking US laws day and night and day and night and murdering and destroying Natural Rights left and right, pushing for dystopian measures against every Americans' interest, and there are 1000 laws broken, and it piles up? Well the Executive Branch is tested. If the Executive Branch does not know how to execute laws against him, then the experiment of 245 years had failed and Washington should just fold up shop and call it a day. The United States of America ought to be considered a good effort, a good idea, but a failure.

2. MY NATURAL RIGHT SECURITY TESTS LEGITIMACY OF UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

We are often too lax in evaluating the government. You see, the United States Founders believed, as I do, that governments are instituted among men to secure Natural Rights. All other things they do are secondary. I want my Natural Rights secured by my government. I am American. Now some might say, well governments are not perfect, and there are some failures in Natural Rights Security and governments survive those imperfections. That would be the case if I did not repeatedly and incessantly emailed every possible institution I could find, US Supreme Court, United Nations, Human Rights Organisations, and reminded everyone that it is the purpose of US Government to secure my Natural Rights. I emailed every single US Senator as well. It has been months and Bill Gates is still using his power considers with the plan to harm me more and destroy my Life and obstruct my earnings of $620 million. There is only so much that is reasonable to tolerate before one has to seriously consider whether the Founders were wrong in their invention. Why is the entire US Executive Branch unable to deliver Natural Rights Security in this case? Can they deliver Natural Rights Security to anyone at all if they are threatened by another criminal like Bill Gates? Should United States Government be dissolved because it is impossible for United States to deliver their fundamental purpose of Natural Rights to American People?

Now I have repeatedly asked the United States Government to bomb Bill Gates and obliterate him physically. They could have killed him by Navy Seals. I am coming to the conclusion that US Executive Branch is not committed to executing American Laws. If this is right United States needs another sort of government. It makes no sense for the American People to continue to support and fund a government that refuses to enforce its own laws and put its own people in danger of criminals.
