

NEW YORK CITY HIGH SCHOOL EDUCATION IS INFINITELY BETTER THAN SEATTLE

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

Bill Gates believes that savage behaviour like enslavement and plunder make people superior. He has been savagely destroying all my personal meta to plunder and enslave me for more than a year. I am amazed at how bad the high school education is in Seattle. My high school was John Adams, and we had English Honours and AP classes – I got a 4 not a 5, just so that you know. Well we studied Joseph Conrad’s The Heart of Darkness in class. Bill Gates clearly did not study important part of history and literature at all.

Who the hell that you have ever met with a modicum of cultivation literally thinks plundering and enslaving is superior? You see, I knew that enslaving and plundering was savage at seven or eight already. I gravitated towards English Romantics, and I learned fairly young about the great United Nations Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 1948. My father was an extremely well-regarded senior government official and he was loved for his gentle demeanour. No one in New York I ever met said to me, "Oh, wouldn't it be lovely to go and enslave and plunder the people over there and take their women as slaves?" Everyone I knew throughout my life was not particularly fond of invasions and sacking. As a matter of fact, sacking of Rome by Ostrogoths is the symbol of fall of Civilisation to barbarism.

Where does this man find this claptrap at all. His ideas of value of enslavement and plunder are so strange to me that I can't even find anytime after the time of Deuteronomy where his sort of ideas belonged in anything remotely resembling civilisation.

Let me look at the timeline over here to place Bill Gates. It's not Medieval Europe. That's too posh for him.

"Since the idea was first put forward by W.M.L de Wette in 1805, most scholars have accepted that this core was composed in Jerusalem in the 7th century BCE in the context of religious reforms advanced by King Josiah (reigned 641–609 BCE)" [1].

That's about right, seventh century before Christ. That's a period where he could even remotely get any respectability in Civilisation. He literally thinks that white people will regard his ideas of plunder, sacking and destruction and enslaving of non-whites attractive. Where do they find these sorts of people? I am just amazed.

Anyway, enslavement and conquest were outlawed in international law after the founding of the United States after the Second World War. Today they are crimes against humanity. Most people in modern civilisation consider them disgusting and barbaric. Bill Gates believes, however, that white people secretly are enthusiastic about this. That's not my experience at all. He's just a very destructive malevolent evil criminal man.
