

BILL GATES HOW HAVE YOU DONE MORE FOR WHITE PEOPLE THAN I HAVE?

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

Early in the morning, five in the morning I have walked the streets of Manhattan and collected sandwiches that were good but expiration, and I collected baskets of them and I distributed them among the weary homeless, many white people and others not white in 2009.

When I had pittance income in disability during the Houston flooding, mostly distressed white people I took $500 of my own money and sent it for relief.

I had a white friend, Raul, also homeless, in San Francisco. I took my own money and took him to a cafe for a dignified talk and a latte.

There is more. But let's start there. What have you actually done for white people that show that you have any empathy for their distress and suffering Bill Gates?
