

AMERICAN MANIFEST DESTINY IS DEEP PART OF AMERICAN PSYCHE AND INCLUDES ASIAN MANIFEST DESTINY

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

I will attempt to give some very simple sketchy understanding of Manifest Destiny in American Psyche. I will quote directly from Wikipedia without apology for this, so be warned this is not all original writing. What will be new is insight into a new concept, Asian Manifest Destiny which is implicit in American dealings with Asia.

The term "Manifest Destiny" was used by Democrats in the 1840s to justify the Mexican–American War and it was also used to negotiate the Oregon boundary dispute. Manifest destiny always limped along because of its internal limitations and the issue of slavery in the United States, says Merk, and never became a national priority. By 1843, former U.S. President John Quincy Adams, originally a major supporter of the concept underlying manifest destiny, had changed his mind and repudiated expansionism because it meant the expansion of slavery in Texas.

The American Natural Psyche has this messianic zeal that was not considered important during the Cold War. We see this in the pattern from 1955, of Korean War, then the Vietnam War, and then Iraq and Afghanistan War. The pattern I will claim is a deeper expression of American White People's Manifest Destiny that in the end American White People will rule the world, and Genocide and destroy all sorts of other peoples along the way.

Europe does not have this in its psyche at all. This is not British Empire sort of thing. This is literal genocide and destruction of people and civilisations a savage drive that is considered in a positive light as glorious and great in American Psyche.

This has been the hidden driving force of American Wars in Asia from 1955 and will remain the driving force. This is not ideological in a rational way. And it will destroy all of Europe if Europe does not understand it. It's not part of Europe's Psyche and so Europeans will simply not understand it at all. They might understand it intellectually but they won't be able to fathom it. It's purely American, and Europe does not have understanding of it in a visceral way. If they did, they would not be Europeans. Europe cultivates different things than this, quite alien-to-Europe sensibility.