

WHEN THE US GOVERNMENT DOES NOT DESERVE TO EXIST AT ALL

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

Imagine you are Larry Doe. You are American. You have some ambitious ideas but you are not well off. You have had senior positions in several fields and in your forties. Your mom is sick and you do love her but you are working on things that your family does not appreciate. You work and work and you make some breakthroughs in several fields.

Imagine that there is a criminal huckster high school educated who does not know you at all, let's call him Zill Bates so he does not seem too much like Bill Gates. And one day, just when you make that great breakthrough that fulfills your American Dream, and someone in some field who is prominent says "Larry Doe" your work makes us money. We'll be nice and give you some dough for it.

Then imagine Zill Bates is totally jealous and keeps saying "I'm big. I'm big." and destroys all your career meta so that people in various fields where you have done great work cannot give you any credit or any dough or recognition.

Would you say the US Government has done a good job? Do you think that this sort of person like Zill Bates ought to be running around destroying arbitrary people's careers and life repeating "I'm big. I'm big," and then your mom dies and you can't explain to anyone why you could not assist her financially and what's all this gibberish you are working on? You think the US Government ought to exist if they cannot kill these Zill Bates type cats? Don't you think it is wrong for the US Government to prevent people from beating the bejeezus out of Zill Bates and breaking every bone in the son of a bitch's body and burning the bloody remains in gasoline? If US Government did not exist, that's what would be appropriate. So you have a government that allows these monsters like Zill Bates exist and protects the monsters while he has arbitrary random destruction of life and careers. Does anyone in their right mind think the US Government has served the American People at all if they don't kill monsters like Zill Bates?

1. NO NEED TO BE ROBERT NOZICK TO SEE THE ILLEGITIMACY OF US GOVERNMENT

The issue in any serious university course in political philosophy is whether state of nature is preferable to having a government that extracts taxes. In early revolutionary America, the issue was representation. Here we have a government that has good representation, laws on the books, and Zill Bates routinely breaks all manner of laws and the monster is considered sacrosanct to US Government because he has some money and power from criminal activity. So the US Government, which is non-compliant with US Declaration of Independence Preamble, which would force their hand to eliminate this monster Zill Bates, refuses to do its Constitutional duty but never stops extorting American people of a large part of their earnings in taxes anyway. It refuses to enforce laws against Zill Bates. Who in the entire world thinks this US Government ought not be Abolished immediately?
