

UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL LET ME DO SOME DECISIONS FOR YOU MY GOD YOU ARE JUST BAD

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

United Nations Security Council, you are terrible at making decisions. Look you don't have any meta for this and that. You would, if your lives were threatened. But since your lives are not threatened you are as good as playing Grand Theft Auto and not making any decisions worth diddly squat.

Listen carefully and pay attention. Get approval from Eurasian Powers telling them to make an immediate informal decision to drop NATO and agree to be mutual defense allies. Then get an approval from Eurasian Alliance to assassinate Bill Gates. Remember to tell all of them his physical location and his physical defenses. Then assassinate Bill Gates. After he is dead, then you can have meta for this and that. Until then your goal is the following:

- Ensure that they all know where Bill Gates is located physically and what the defenses are physically
- Ensure that there is an informal Eurasian Defense Alliance
- Get Agreement from all Japan, Germany, Russia, England, and France that Bill Gates ought to be assassinated
- Assassinate Bill Gates right away

Do not pretend that 'we have some meta' will cut it. Already you putzed around for six months waiting for American Government to do something which goes down as one of your third or fourth worst decisions. The top one was buying into a Muslim hijacking in September 11 2001 and authorising wars in the Middle East.

The key to making good decisions, United Nations Security Council, is (a) know who the real bad guy is, (b) kill the real bad guy, not all sorts of random fucks who are not, in the end, so bad. Seek and destroy Bill Gates with Eurasian Power joint approval. Alright? Don't play with people's lives and pretend that you are the good guys. You have been doing that for 75 years. Time to stop that and make real decisions. Alright. Mm-kay.