

BILL GATES' CONCEPT OF BIG IS ANTI-AMERICAN AND UNCONSTITUTIONAL

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

United States of America is not an arbitrary pooling together of 320 million of every possible strange human being that you can imagine. Instead, it is a Multi-Ethnic Classical Liberal Democratic Republic. The foundations of the organisation are two documents. These are US Declaration of Independence and US Constitution.

Now I have dealt with Bill Gates in meta, to my great misfortune for more than a year. Never in my life have I come across a more vile disgusting unsavory criminal malevolent worthless Character who does not deserve to live in my 48 years on Earth.

One of his habits is to use the following logic: "I am big. Therefore I can do X ," where X is variously the sort of activity that is

- Unlawful
- Criminal
- Evil
- Malevolent
- Abominable
- Reprehensible
- Bad
- Horrible

For example, his logic includes "I am big so I can murder (little) people". Or "I am big so I don't have to follow any law." Or "I am big so I can destroy the interior of Zulf after cutting up his eyes". These are all actual real examples; they are not hypothetical guesses.

Now let us be formal about the problem here. Bill Gates literally seems to believe that with this concept of 'big' he can do anything horrible and bad and aggressive and wrong etc. as he wants. In particular he believes that since he is big that he is not subject to the laws and regulations of the United States of America. Therefore his concept of 'big' is Unconstitutional. Nowhere either in US Declaration or in US Constitution is 'big' mentioned as a generic loophole for exceptions. Instead, our political principle is that all men are created equal and therefore that Bill Gates was created equal to all other men in the entire world. He cannot invent a generic word to except him from laws.

As a matter of fact, if I were in the authority in US Government, I'd bomb the little cunt to smithereens the moment he even uttered "I'm big" because the implication is that he has no civilised bounds and he will claim right to do any crime using generic excuse that he is excepted from punishments for violation of laws because he is 'big'.
