

THE FUNDAMENTAL WEAKNESS OF THE LIAR LIKE BILL GATES VERSUS AN HONEST MAN LIKE ZULF

There are two sorts of honesty and lying that I distinguish. The first sort of honesty is match between some objective standard and one's speech. For example, 'the speed of light is finite and in fact roughly 3×10^8 meters per second'. This is objective truth and can be verified by many people independently of my pronouncement. This sort of truth is good when available, but the failure to be truthful in this way is not actually dishonesty but ignorance.

A second sort of honesty is more interesting to me these days. It is a convergence of outer speech with inner heart. This sort of honesty is not particularly fashionable I think in modern society. I love this sort of honesty more, the honesty where there is a unity between the inner heart of individuals and their outer speech. Now this sort of honesty is not manipulative and is unpopular for a reason. Very often the inner heart has negative assessments of things, so often this sort of honesty is considered unsophisticated unpolitical. I am an aristocratic man so I do not think this is a serious issue. It is only considered unsophisticated because most people are not refined in their inner heart in the modern age. Refinement of the inner heart is much more important than is thought anyway. I am much more interested in this sort of honesty because I am honest in this way.

Now I am honest in both sorts of ways, and Bill Gates is dishonest in both sorts of ways and so there is an interesting contest. He has money and power and influence and renown, and I have less of this. And yet I have firm faith that my honesty is stronger than his strategies of manipulation, deception, and subterfuge.

In the infinite time limit, I am certain to prevail over a pathological liar in a precise sense such as Bill Gates, whose self-promotion material had always been strategic deception for his active purposes, such as hiding his inner convictions and his zealous agenda of a world order where the 'white tribe' rules with misery and enslavement for all others the entire planet Earth.

1. DISHONESTY IS ALWAYS COSTLY

I have been extremely honest since I was a child and it is quite dangerous in many cases. Once a woman rang up and I picked up the phone when I lived with my grandmother and uncle. She asked me some questions about some party and I just told her whatever I remembered. My uncle came and beat me with wires leaving marks on my back and I was hospitalised. It was his love interest who was suspecting infidelity. Those sorts of things happen. But I don't have any other nature within me, and in the long run honesty is better. I have very little that weighs down my conscience since I am quite honest and that might not seem valuable in the short run, it adds up when you grow older and suddenly you are just lighter with fewer things weighing you down than many others who are less honest.

Date: August 5, 2021.