

SOME ASPECTS OF MALE SELF-DEVELOPMENT

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

Male Self-Development is stunted in the modern world. There are some aspects of Self-Development that are not immediately emphasized in Virtue education. I found it fascinating to watch Francis Ford Coppola's The Godfather and learn some aspects of human nature.

One thing that is actually important I think is that male sense of self requires development universally in a manner different from women, and this is the sense that one is completely individually responsible on matters of possible conflicts. I had no intention at all to harm Bill Gates more than a year ago. I offered him something that would benefit his interests. I arranged for him to invest in my Medium Frequency Strategy with D. E. Shaw & Co. He put in $2 billion into it anyway, but denigrated my work as 'trivia' and it is not simply not trivia but extraordinary Nobel Prize level breakthrough in Finance and then he decided to murder me and deny me my $120 million and starve me of all income and use me for experiments to enslave Asians. I would have ordered him whacked anyway if I were already a mafia don. Instead I had to create my guys and then order him whacked. Obviously I do not have any pangs of conscience about this. I am morally fully justified in ordering him whacked. That's what the cunt deserves. I am overall enormously proud of my exquisite and sharp development of moral sensitivity, to know with absolute certainty that whacking Bill Gates is the right thing to do, and that my guys ought to be Eurasian Powers to do this murder. Assassination, I think is the word in the geopolitical lingo. But I think ordering him whacked is much more correct and it is morally the best answer.

This is a great privilege, because there is always a feeling that there is something right about the aesthetics of mafia morally that the government never understood. And it is the sense of precision, of knowing who must be whacked for what harm. Bill Gates ought to be whacked, for personal harm to me. He also happens to be a danger for a racial world order. That is important for Eurasian Powers, but not why I personally am ordering him whacked. I am doing so for harm to my person, and not, primarily, to protect the world from a racial hierarchy world order. Those things I might not have cared about directly if Bill Gates did not get in the way of my own American Dream.

It is important to attempt to separate the nuances of what is worth doing for what reasons. They are never easy. But in this case Bill Gates is fully, completely, and justifiably deserving of being whacked. And he ought to be whacked by Eurasian Powers immediately and without questioning my order.