

MY EMPLOYMENT IDEAS FOR UNITED NATIONS SECURITY COUNCIL

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

I have ambitions to create some world class organisations that will withstand the test of time and invite in our team some of the most talented people in the world. I am not interested in creating the sort of body shops with controlling rubber plantation slave master situation that Bill Gates has always created. My ideals are organisations like IMF and others that exist to serve the human race in specific ways.

Bill Gates keeps pretending that I am like him and his weaknesses. I have no record of having any serious problems with white people at all as colleagues. I am a Princeton Man with professional experience in Finance, Technology and Science. I prefer academic-oriented situations since my career began as a quant. I think I can show organisations that are infinitely better than the Bill Gates types can produce because I am more concerned with treating employees well and creating a civilised environment rather than a cutthroat environment with all sorts of competition for the corner office and other petty things that we see in Office Space.

I have worked with white and Asian and black and Hispanic people all my career and do not have any problems with doing this.
