

ZULF'S FEBRUARY 16 2022 2:29 PM WHAT IS THE VALUE OF M. H. ABRAMS TO UNIVERSAL WELL-BEING?

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED
ZULFIKAR.AHMED@GMAIL.COM

Examine a chimpanzee seriously and you will find an enormously sophisticated being. The behaviour of the chimpanzee is extremely sophisticated, so much so that in the 350 years that Science has existed, we have not gained sufficiently deep understanding of the chimpanzee at all. We are barely able to sequence the DNA of the chimpanzee. And we do not know the circumstances that led to the evolutionary adaptations of the chimpanzee at all. Our observational and linguistic faculties are weak to have a complete comprehension.

I will obviously have to admit that my training was in Mathematics, so biology was never a strength. But I have completed theoretical physics with my four-sphere theory and outrank the genius of Isaac Newton and Erwin Schroedinger and Paul Dirac and feel comfortable with it being the Final Theory of Physics, and so I turn to the questions of Human Nature seriously.

Chimpanzees are our cousins from around 8 million years ago. We, the human beings, have been building entire Civilisations starting in Asia for about six thousand years. We evolved in East Africa and dispersed throughout the world as the following graphic shows.

Before I talk about M. H. Abrams, let me tell you about what is valuable. I am interested in truth, about understanding that is valuable universally. It was immense intellectual effort that led me to the conclusion that the Human Race is

Date: February 17, 2022.

(a) a single race and (b) that it is an angelic race, both of which are not well-known today in this primitive Age of Man. Indeed, I am slated for destruction by a primitive savage barbaric tribal criminal, this Bill Gates who holds ignorant and harmful false views about the truth of human beings when the government of my own country is too corrupt to address destructive harm to my person by this vile knave and born psychopathic charlatan.

But I am a great genius and a great man, and I shall move undaunted to loftier grounds regardless. One of the deepest mysteries of Science, of true knowledge, of course is to have deeper understanding of universal human nature. I have already established, by my toil and intellectual effort and my own genius that there is a universal human moral nature and have challenged the theories of human moral nature of Friedrich Nietzsche and Immanuel Kant. These people, who are quite bright, were strongly in error about human moral nature. They had erroneously repeated the errors of Socrates, which developed through the European Enlightenment period. They had found the fountain of human morality in the faculties of reason within man. This is deeply wrong. In fact human moral nature is the product of eight million years of evolution from the chimpanzee, and they are written in our genetic code in common or  $G_c$  that constitutes 99.9% of every human child born on Earth.

There exist universally valid propositions that hold true for all eight billion people, highly nontrivial truths, that remain to be discovered. This is the primary conviction that I hold and I have only begun to discover some of these in my work. I was hoping that Stanford University would give me tenured full professorship and arrange that I receive my $620 million being obstructed by this evil, vile, savage, barbaric, destructive Demon, this Bill Gates who had plotted a Dystopian World Order all his life, of enslavement and colonisation around the world, while people like me struggle to find a better world for all human beings.

Let me share with you a song. I will tell you more in a little while [5]. The refrain from the song is this: "And when we're dead let our voices carry on for a better song. To find a better song and sing along." The expression is attractive for most human beings because that is part of our human nature, that we are all moved to find ways to ensure that our collective future is better for all people, that we are individually more fulfilled, healthier and happier, and the entire human race is as well. That too is part of human evolution.

This is the context of my interest in Romanticism and its achievements in Europe between 1780-1830, as the particular emphases that the greatest poets and painters and thinkers of this era had seen some things, had understood some things whose universality for eight billion had not been explored, and whose truth remain to be clarified.

That truth, from my point of view, has to be correlated with  $G_c$ , the genetic code in common, for all human beings. It is to refine the universal nontrivial truths about human nature that is particularly interesting to me, for these will be able to give all human beings tools for more fulfilling inner and outer lives once they are cleared of their confusion. And that is one of my goals. I see great potential for M. H. Abrams and the analysis of Romantics and of the Modernists as well, for vast improvements for life on Earth for all human beings in a global scale.

1. WHITE RACE ETC. ARE MATTERS OF FASHION NOT TRUTH

It is well-understood today that around 80,000 years ago our—all human race—genetic heritage is from a single meta-tribe in Africa. I strongly deride people taking 'White Race' seriously. White people are not a different race than Black or Asian people at all. This is a matter of colourful fashion and nothing else. This is a Primitive Age of Man where these colourful fads and fashions are popular among some people but these have no substance. The research on this area has been quite decisive and the conclusion of non-existence of biological races within homo sapiens is established beyond any possibility of dislocation by efforts of vile, disgusting, brutal barbaric, savage criminals like Bill Gates.

During Bill Gates, the traitor to the nation, had used US War Power to harm my Body Meta, prohibited by Geneva Conventions even against Prisoners Of War, and I am an Asian-American with totally legitimate papers who was pursuing my American Dream. He used US Industrial Power to damage my exoskeleton in the middle of a Harvard tenure consider. That he is a brutal, savage, barbarian murderous criminal is not in any doubt by myself. Those able to consider this will verify easily.

2. RETURN TO M. H. ABRAMS

The main theme of The Mirror And The Lamp is a shift from reflection of Nature to expression from the individual interior projected to illuminate the world. The genius of M. H. Abrams is to articulate this as a major shift from pre-Romantic understanding of art from Plato to Enlightenment, and the signature disruption of the Romantics.

The particular details that M. H. Abrams provides are pioneering as his particular viewpoint illuminated a large body of works from visual arts to poetry.

Although I will be interested in particular elements that are illuminating in the works of M. H. Abrams, I have my own agenda generally with my life, and that is driving my interest in examining not just M. H. Abrams but all other interests of mine in literature and art and humanities, and that is that I am interested in self-understanding of my own soul as well as refinement of truths that are universally valid for all human beings. There is a goal here that is not implicit but explicit, that I wish to endow my beloved people with knowledge of truth that shall be transformative for future generations of all people of Earth. I believe that it is knowledge that allows people to have better lives, produce a better world, and allow people to lead more fruitful, fulfilling, satisfactory lives. Those who have greater access to deeper truths about their own souls and of the external world are better able to lead fulfilling, virtuous, happy, healthy lives than those without deeper truths. This is a principle that I enunciate on my own behalf and I do not really care too much about who before me had already pronounced this principle. But it is not an implicit principle. This is my conviction and it is therefore my intention to follow this principle by small rational steps.

3. A REVIEW OF MY WORK ON COMPLETE VIRTUES BEYOND ARISTOTLE AND AVICENNA

I will not go into tremendous detail here since I have covered these in previous short papers that are archived [6]. I don't bother with attempting to publish my work at the moment in various sorts of journals and just archive them in Github for public accessibility for several reasons. First, too many journals are expensive for people, and second, the journals are too specialised in minutiae and I have a broad set of scholarly interests. This might change, if I manage to survive the horrible harm done to me by Bill Gates which will physically kill me eventually unless there are efforts to mend my ethnic and health meta. I suspect that United States Government will be racially biased and will not do what it needs to do by US Declaration of Independence duties. They have done very little to in the past year as I have been brutally and savagely assaulted by this villain, knave, and scoundrel Bill Gates and I rationality suggests that they will allow him to kill me, for they are illegitimate and corrupt beyond all understanding of American public.

The key problem I resolved, with a great deal of empirical support are (a) Life Satisfaction of people are positively correlated with high moral values, and (b) The four most potent Character Strengths for Romantic Love are:

- Hope
- Gratitude
- Zest
- Love

These are very clear from the great work of [12]. This was discovered on November 21 2021, and these are the completion of Aristotle's Virtue-Eudaimonia Theory.

This work of mine is of transformative value to the entire human race, for they give all human beings autonomous ability to know the relative importance of various qualities that guarantee highest possible life satisfaction for themselves. These have previous to my work matters of conjecture and confusion, with constant attempts by various powers to intervene with nonsense. I provided clear solid knowledge for the entire human race about the universal factors that apply to all human beings without exception.

4. BILL GATES "PHILANTHROPY" WAS SNAKE-OIL SALESMANSHIP ALL ALONG

You see my paper History Of Romantic Love was a true philanthropic gift to the entire human race of monumental genius. Free of any financial cost, I had provided knowledge to my beloved people that is worth a great deal more than money. I have given them truth regarding the Virtues that will give them Life Satisfaction. This is great world-class philanthropy, done without wealth. Bill Gates had obstructed $620 million of my legitimate earnings in the United States using all manner of illegitimate over-reach for I am owed this money from Finance, and I have been a Finance professional from 1995. Bill Gates is totally idiotic, moronic, and ignorant about Finance, and his own stupid ignorant statements will prove so. I, on the other hand have worked at Lehman Brothers with Andrew Morton and Kaushik Amin, two highly regarded Finance Quants, and some of the best people in Wall Street. How dare this scrub get between myself and my legitimate earnings from D. E. Shaw & Co. and Madam Christine Lagarde of ECB?

I am a far greater philanthropist than this miserable, wretched, vile, worthless, deceptive scumbag Bill Gates will ever be able reach in a million years.

5. GOING AROUND M. H. ABRAMS

As is my habit, I will circle gently around the substantial ideas of M. H. Abrams a bit, meaning the ideas that were originated by M. H. Abrams himself and examine the substance of things he examined independently. For example, I consider his articulation of seven principles about poetry derived Wordsworth's Preface to Lyrical Ballads of 1798. (pp. 100–103 of [3]).

Before going on, let me tell you about some of my interests in recent years. I have been quite interested in the work on emotional foundations of personality distinctions in humans best articulated in the spectacular theory of Jaak Panksepp and Kenneth L. Davis [4]. I was already quite familiar with the Five Factor Model of Personality Traits for some years and had done some significant advances for personality types and verified thousands of personality types in human race. Panksepp's clarification of the seven subcortical systems for all emotions in human beings provided one of the strongest clear biological models for human emotions in history of Science, and that is articulated in Panksepp's Affective Neuroscience. It was quite obvious to me, therefore, that we ought to gain deeper insight into the nature of the universal human individual by return to the Romantics 1780-1830, since the artists from this period had been concerned about feelings and emotions from an artistic perspective without clarity about the neuroscience of emotions or even the existence of genetic code (DNA was discovered in 1953, the same year M. H. Abrams published The Mirror and the Lamp).

Thus we have an opportunity to revisit and re-examine the theories of Wordsworth and Coleridge with clearer understanding of emotions and this will allow us to have sharper understanding of what is universally valid for all human beings.

6. FINE BILL GATES WHY DON'T YOU SHOW YOUR INTELLECTUAL CALIBER?

Let us examine what I am doing.

What I am doing is attempting to interweave extremely modern knowledge of neuroscience of human emotions with discoveries of the Romantic Era 1780-1830 and attempt to understand how these are understood from study of M. H. Abrams, one of the great twentieth century scholars of Romanticism.

Does the college dropout charlatan Bill Gates have any idea of who these men are? M. H. Abrams and Jaak Panksepp? Does he know their work or their genius? Does he have any understanding of human emotions beyond glib talk and soundbites? How is he going to compete with myself if he does not know anything substantial about any of this? These are snapshots of the books I personally possess in my library. What happened to Billy Boy Gates' great for-show library? He has learned what in his fake reading of the books in the fancy Xanadu 2.0 library? "Whites are superior whites are superior"? You call this IQ 160 material seriously?

You see, my dear reader, I studied Literature seriously at Princeton University, although I was not as good as the best of Princeton scholars in literature, I graduated with 4.2 GPA in Mathematics and a magna cum laude in 1995 in Mathematics and married a humanities scholar for some years. My personal interest has been Romantic Era and Modernist poets and writers. I am thus able to detect talent and genius in humanities by lifelong interest in literary matters. Many scientific psychologists do not respect work in humanities because they are not sufficiently familiar with practice in Literature. They dismiss works in humanities as 'fluff'. I do not, but I am discerning regarding genius here. On the other hand many humanities scholars are dismissive towards scientific scholars are being concerned with very narrow issues without perspective. I am fortunate to be able to be able to see the best talent of both. And for this reason, I am quite interested in the theories and works of Romantic and Modernist periods in Europe as sources of insight about universal and scientifically valid truths about human nature for the purpose of a harmonious and brighter future for my beloved people the human race.

Now Bill Gates is a malevolent born psychopath, and he was a charlatan about every significant aspect of his life. He was never a great intellectual genius even in technology. He is a poser. He did exploit some people talented in coding but he is totally bereft of any college level education and is totally low and ignorant and uncultured and uncultivation who does not possess ordinary college education at all. He has bamboozled the American people and industry with glib rubbish pretending to be a great genius. He is no genius at all. As a matter of fact I have met hamburger flippers who are much more enlightened and intellectually more talented than this Bill Gates.

7. HISTORY OF DIVISION BETWEEN SCIENCE AND HUMANITIES HAS DEEP ROOTS

Already in 1640s Rene Descartes challenged the Humanists in Europe. James Engell, in The Creative Imagination interprets the third earl of Shaftesbury as a key figure offering an alternative to the Newtonian Scientific Worldview that was spreading in Europe. Humanistic education eventually fell in esteem in Europe. In America, this was even more severe as commercial men had gained dominance and we detect this in Thomas Stearns Eliot's swift escape to England from Boston. I won't go into the cultural analysis of Humanities and Science in America too deeply. What I will instead point out is that I have made tremendous revolutionary breakthroughs in theoretical physics already, and have significant breakthroughs also in Psychology of Human Nature in morals. I am not a doctorate of Neuroscience at all but I have worked in Ph.D. Level Scientific Positions in Biospect/Predicant 2002-5 in South San Francisco and my Scientific genius is without doubts.

In particular, I am quite familiar with Jaak Panksepp's work in Affective Neuroscience as well as work of Jerome Barkow, Leda Cosmides, and John Toobey in Evolutionary Psychology. My Humanities interests are less developed in professional level as they are of purely personal interests. I read and re-read many authors like Percy Bysshe Shelley, Franz Kafka, Rainer Maria Rilke, Hermann Broch, Virginia Woolf, T. S. Eliot, Robert Musil, and others for personal spiritual growth and self-understanding. I find many people such as Paul de Man and Walter Benjamin illuminating. It is thus not so surprising that I turn to them for clear understanding of truth of Human Nature as well.

One way to see this, as a scientist, is to consider them to be inspirations for scientific theories. Humanistic approaches are much more interested in illumination of one sort, where the focus is not on constant experimental verification of what to most humanistic scholars would be fairly simple things but on development of vaster understanding of deep issues of sophisticated human civilisation. Their methods are not empirical by and large. But the substance they address is central to well-being of future civilisation.

You see, I do not think that commercial culture is viable. It is too weak and decrepit, too shallow and dystopian to sustain civilisation. Merchants are not equipped to provide order to the world, and Bill Gates is not exceptional of the sorts of dangers that exist in glorifying commerce. Money is not all that central.

In the future, we will see that money, like clean water, is abundant and was never particularly as vital as many other aspects of civilisation. This is a primitive age, so deluded United States Government is making the fatal mistake of valuing Bill Gates more than myself. Posterity will not forgive this insolence of American Government.

8. LET'S RETURN TO EMOTIONS IN WORDSWORTH

It takes quite a while, at least for me, to reach clear understanding on matters of substance. Wordsworth's Preface to Lyrical Ballads had been examined by M. H. Abrams who distilled seven points in them. I am interested in these from a modern point of view, and it is worthwhile to repeat the goal because it is not yet established as an organised direction of systematic study yet. The goal is to gain insights that are universally valid for all human beings.

These are extraordinary delicate matters. I studied the writings of Carl Jung for some time regarding emotions in the human psyche and gained some insight, but as someone who has a great deal of experience with Mathematics, I am interested in precise truth and not nebulous articles of faith that are not able to withstand empirical tests.

It is not satisfactory for me to have clear idea of what the Romantic poets believed or thought might be valuable. What interests me, instead, is what the Romantic poets had articulated that has independent universal truth that holds valid for all human beings born on Earth, and then those are worth refining and clarifying so that they could improve the lives of my beloved people the human race. That is a goal that has not been clear to many scholars and scientists, that we are in a project with the purpose of discovery of absolute truth regarding Nature and also Man.

Our emotions are not new; mammals had developed emotion systems that we human beings have inherited several hundred million years ago. Here I disagree strongly with Joseph LeDoux, who holds views about impossibility of scientific measurements of animal emotions [2]. This is a wrong view. Jaak Panksepp's view is right and here I think Joseph LeDoux is being too 'conservative'. You see, human emotions can be objectively measured directly, and it is perfectly sensible to use similar measurements for animal emotions. The idea that animal emotions are any less scientifically measurable is silly. To the extent we can correlate particular human emotions to any neural system in the brain at all, I think it is silly to consider similar measurements to be faulty for animal emotions. The problem Professor LeDoux seems to be having is an unjustified human-centrism that is invalid from examining the analogies of systems in humans and mammals.

This is serious. We experience pain and wince. We see the mouse do the same. It's just wrong to say that "I do not know if the mouse is in pain." Obviously the mouse is in pain and is feeling pain. Mr. Ledoux here is totally wrongheaded. Seriously! It's not as bad but in the same direction as Bill Gates' theory that non-white people are not susceptible to pain. It's outrageously bad position for Joseph LeDoux.

I like Joseph LeDoux's works but he is wrong about animals not having emotions. I have bonded with a kitten and was devastated and could not work for days when he died from rat poison in Washington Heights. How did I know that the cat was in pain? There was not doubts at all. It was clear as day to me that the cat loved me and I was his 'mommy' and so I knew when he was in pain and I mourned his death as though I had lost a son. The ability to know when an animal is in pain is part of human abilities. And it is totally absurd for a neuroscientist to get confused about this. Joseph LeDoux is terribly wrong about this. Obviously all mammals have emotions and feel pain and our human emotions are quite similar. I know this just from experience and I strongly doubt that this position that "They are not scientifically measurable" will last even several decades. It's wrong. I know it's wrong and theories that deny that animals have emotions are not going to last all that long because they're absurd.

9. ZULF WILL TELL YOU A STORY FROM MY LIFE

After I graduated from Princeton, I moved to Manhattan, and I took Columbia housing. I had a nice two bedroom apartment in 113th Street between Broadway and Amsterdam. I needed a year off to work at Lehman, because my family needed money. I invited my love interest Natalia Brizuela to live with me. We had a beautiful time together that year. We were walking one day on Broadway, and Natalia saw some cute kittens being given away. She picked a tiny tiny grey kitten and I immediately said okay to it. I used to wear a long brown coat, and I was very close to the kitten. It would like to hang out in my pocket sometimes when I took a walk.

At nights, the kitten could not sleep away from his mommy, i.e., Zulf. I was his mommy. And it would cry when I put him out no matter how much yummy things you gave him. So for a year I could not sleep at ease, because the kitten was right next to me and I was too afraid to hurt him. He would be sleeping without care right in the bed. I was working at Lehman and would come home and the kitten would be starved for love and attention and would meow a lot and be so happy that it would start purring like a motor car until the need for affection reduced. He was good at running around and fetching paper balls and would play at eating my hand when I put it in the comforter and pretend to be grabbing him. He'd flash his claws and attack my hand with zeal.

Anyway, it's life experiences. I responded emotionally to the kitten because of evolutionary adaptations within my genetic code that recognised the emotional bond between myself and the kitten, and the kitten loved me quite naturally. His name was Rulfo and he was a beautiful grey cat, like a panther.

Mr. LeDoux can learn from human bonds with their kittens and doggies that there is no doubt at all that animals have emotions. They are not always as dramatic as humans but they are very real, and feelings of animals is not a theory; it's just real part of my experience and so theories that deny them are nonsense and are bad science.

10. I RESPECT PROFESSOR JOSEPH LEDOUX'S WORK

Look, I am Zulf, and I am a fair man. I have read several of Professor Ledoux's books. I like him. He had formidable capabilities in neuroscience. However, in Science, it does not matter what you are good at and what you're bad at. You can't go against Nature, period. Now you can say, "Well, Zulf, your experience is merely anecdotal". That does not matter. I have experience that tells me the proposition "Animals do not have emotions" is total nonsense and "We will never have scientifically measurable evidence that mammals have feelings" is wrong. Animals do have emotions, I know, and any serious ingenuity expended will measure them. So here I am on pretty solid ground of actual experience with a kitten's emotions from life. What will compel various supervisory research directors is irrelevant in the end. Science will be wrong if it goes against Nature.

11. CONTINUATION OF THE HISTORY OF EMOTIONS

I have to put aside Joseph Ledoux's theory and return to a much simpler evolutionary account of emotions. It is the one of Jaak Panksepp in Affective Neuroscience. The basic premise is that some neurobiological systems in the subcortical part of the brain have seven emotion systems. You look at each of them and you can seek their analogies in animals, and then date the time of the origins of those emotions.

I was actually unaware that there was any controversy at all about evolution of emotions in mammals. The right theory will be that whenever those subcortical neurobiological systems that are implicated in the seven emotions of Panksepp evolved, emotions evolved with them.

I do not think it's conservative to say, "Well I don't know if mammals have scientifically measurable emotions." If you are going to be like that, why not also say "I don't know if my mother has scientifically measurable emotions," or even more dangerous, "I don't know if my lover has scientifically measurable emotions." I dare you to try doing that and see what happens. Maybe you'll live. Maybe you'll be stabbed with a steely knife. That'll teach you to make errors against Nature.

12. FAIRLY STRAIGHTFORWARD WAYS TO MEASURE ANIMAL EMOTIONS

Well you can just examine the MRI activations for the human emotions and it is known that mammals have the same subcortical systems and measure animal emotions by measured activations. The mice and cats do not need to tell you their life story to consider these scientific measurements. I don't think this is such a great barrier as to take the position "There exist no scientific measurability for mammalian emotions." I won't go through the exercise myself but I can easily consider this extremely feasible.

So you say emotions  $e_1, \dots, e_n$  in humans activate and deactivate systems  $s_1, \dots, s_n$ . Then interpret activations of  $s_1, \dots, s_n$  in mammals as emotions  $e'_1, \dots, e'_n$  and call them all measured emotions  $e'_1, \dots, e'_n$ . There. Now you have scientific measurability of mammal emotions.

13. ROUGH TIMELINE

Mammals have had emotions since evolution of the first mammals, so that's roughly 251-201 million years of all sorts of emotions. The trouble with taking the erroneous position that mammals are not known to have emotions etc. is (a) it disrupts Zulf's picture of the world which is a definite no-no, and (b) it produces obstruction to all of Science converging to Zulf's story of the world which is a catastrophe.

14. ZULF THANKS HAIM BREZIS AND JOSEPH LEDOUX FOR OBTAINING FRENCH GOVERNMENT PROTECTION

So, Professors Haim Brezis and Joseph Ledoux fell for my ploy of "Fourier, Fourier, Borel, Lebesgue, Baire, Baire, Lebesgue, Lebesgue, Fourier, Lebesgue" of how French Analysts turned all of the world's Analysis into French eh? No one even noticed it. You know when I studied Mathematics at Princeton I did not even notice that I was just chanting French names like "Allahu-Akbar" and other Muslim prayers. Well anyway, good work, Henri Lebesgue and Jean-Baptiste Joseph Fourier. That's what I am looking for now, find all sorts of key features of Nature and turn the whole world into saying "Ahmed Ahmed Ahmed" etc. and suddenly even Jesus Christ would be frightened.

15. WELL FROM MY STORYLINE IT'S OBVIOUS EMOTIONS HAVE EXISTED FOR 251 MILLION YEARS

You see, Professor Ledoux's point of view is from the point of view natural for a modern skeptical careful scientist culturally from severe fear of being superstitious and Medieval. That's one sort of care. My point of view is that emotions are subcortical in humans, and therefore more ancient than neocortex in humans, and so it's natural to expect that emotions evolved naturally with mammals and then later of human beings, being a bit on the slow side started being told by their lovers, "Baby, I want to hear more that you love me." So then human beings, who were having trouble expressing their feelings properly had to listen to Sting's songs, "If I told you that I looooooved you, you might think there's something wroooooong". That is from "Shape Of My Heart". The point is that mammals has emotions all along and we began with emotions 8 million years ago, but then we took a long time to recognise the obvious. We're human, we get things wrong in this sort of way.

16. ZULF LOVES IT FRANCE IS BACKING ME WITH THEIR POWER

I love it. Good decision France. Oh goodie. Why don't you pick some of the remarkable moments from French Renaissance and Medieval History where Bill Gates is the baddie?

Let me see. Let me see. Don't do Napoleon. That's overdone. Let me see. Good period drama with French Monarchy and some baddie.

I know what, Richard the Lionheart's mother was from Aquitaine. Let's look over the history of Aquitaine, how some evil baddies were handled. United States Government is anemic in supporting me when he applies US War Power against my physical body, so he's an evil baddie.

Let's look at some pictures. I visited Nice, and I loved it.

See that's fourteenth century wedding of Louis VII and Eleanor of Aquitaine. She later married Henry II of England and bore him Richard the Lionheart. I won't go into my past lives but anyway, I like France. I'd have fought you in Algeria and in Indochina, but I am American and here you are my friends. I'm honest. Today all human race is my beloved people including all French.

Don't worry, France. He's not Russian so you'll win. You lose against Russia. It's well known that France wins generally until you invade Russia.

17. PREDICAMENT OF BILL GATES

Bill Gates is a surreptitious Power Murderer for four decades. Now if I don't die he is totally finished anyway. He needs to kill me to survive. But alas France is backing me with their Power. This lowers the probability of my Death, and Asia is committed to keeping me alive.

Where does that leave Bill Gates? It looks to be like Bill Gates will be toasted. I will return to my propaganda poster of white bread and toasted bread later.

18. RETURNING TO THE STORY OF EMOTIONS

The evolution of emotions in mammals is 251 million years old. But what interests me are human emotions, and especially the particular issue of human emotions in art of Romantics.

I will continue with this issue in a bit, as I suddenly realise that this is a great problem, and I introduce Stanley Corngold as well.

I will have to say that this is one of my most important topics, the forms of emotions. As my reader will notice, I am going slowly around M. H. Abrams. I am slowly putting down my own thoughts on the matter of human emotions. I think I will discover new things here but I am not yet sure of what they will be yet.

Emotions are so deeply part of our genetic code that they are difficult to examine with with precision and clarity. They are too deeply written down in our genetic code, and therefore difficult to articulate.

M. H. Abrams's first point about Wordsworth's propositions is: (1) Poetry is the expression of overflowing of feeling, or emerges from a process of imagination in which feelings play the crucial part.

Let us now enjoy the 1817 Shelley poem Ozymandias and we shall dedicate it to Billy Boy Gates. We would be most pleased to see his visage buried near trunkless stone legs in the end.

I met a traveller from an antique land,
Who said—"Two vast and trunkless legs of stone
Stand in the desert ...Near them, on the sand,

Half sunk a shattered visage lies, whose frown,
 And wrinkled lip, and sneer of cold command,
 Tell that its sculptor well those passions read
 Which yet survive, stamped on these lifeless things,
 The hand that mocked them, and the heart that fed,
 And on the pedestal, these words appear:
 My name is Ozymandias. King of Kings.
 Look at my Works, ye Mighty, and despair!
 Nothing beside remains. Round the decay
 Of that colossal Wreck, boundless and bare
 The lone and level sands stretch far away

That's beautiful. Perhaps Bill Gates is right. Perhaps there was a White Pharaoh after all. Ozymandias huh? That's such a coincidence, isn't it? It sounds so much like Billymandias? And that frown and the sneer so familiar. Maybe the peasant-born Bill Gates does have a point. Ozymandias was white! Ozymandias was white! So Billymandias is going to be a colossal Wreck, with lone and level sands stretching far away. You don't say, Percy Bysshe Shelley. I am most pleased for these good tidings.

19. BILL GATES TELLS FRANCE THAT HE HAD USED HIS POWERS TO EMPTY OUT MY DEEP INTERIOR

Bill Gates in brazen arrogance tell France that he had "empied out my Deep Interior" which is a horrible crime of Evil Black Magicks that has been forbidden in Europe since thirteenth century. France, being a legitimate and important member of United Nations and a law-abiding Nation is now forced to act in International Legal channels as well.

Let us see what France does about this horrible vile evil disgusting savage brutal abomination Bill Gates.

20. ASIA WILL BE FORCED TO INVADE AND ELIMINATE BILL GATES AND WHITE SUPREMACISTS IF I DIE

United States Government is just outrageously corrupt and self-satisfied. Asia has 4.5 billion people and Asia has no way to secure their natural rights without invading and wiping out all the white supremacists in the United States the moment I die. This is their rational option to protect their people. Bill Gates used US War Power and US Industrial Power on American Soil and your response was inadequate and he literally empied out my entire Deep Interior. What do you smoke over there in Washington. You want an invasion by military force in American mainland? You were pretty bloody and trigger-happy in Asia for two decades based on lies. There was no Muslim Asians hijacking diddly squat in 9/11. You think this is a joke? You are forcing Asia's hands for what exactly. You really think this wretched miserable son of a bitch is worth an invasion of United States that is forced by your actions?

21. LENGTH OF TIME TO EXTINCTION OF UNITED STATES IF I DIE

I will give you 15-20 years to survive because these are messy things. But if I die Asia will know that there is an implicit war declared on all Asians and you will not be able to convince any Asian country that it is only Bengal or India. All Asians know that I am Asian when I get destroyed by Bill Gates and particular nation will not matter and that will force my "Tranquil Asia" unity quickly become a legitimate Defense Alliance with United States as their threat in a few weeks. After than any US Military action will lead to a mini-world war with Asians willing to invade the United States.

You cannot figure this out United States? Stupid little brats. Why did you allow this cunt Bill Gates to hurt me? You're fools. You don't have the talent to deal with the fallout you stupid fucks.

22. OH MY GOD THESE MORONS ARE OUTRAGEOUSLY INEPT IN RUNNING GOVERNMENTS

Look, if you eliminated Bill Gate right after he used profuse amounts of US War Power in my meta, you could have claimed that it was a minor internal issue. But you supported Bill Gates instead of the legitimate American, myself, after the event where he used US War Power in my Deep Interior for more than a year. This obviously will be construed as a declaration of war on Asia right in American soil by not Bill Gates but by United States Government with Racial Order Plans. This will then force all Asian Nations to unite under one flag to engage future threats.

I'll show you the flag.

See I already gave Asia this flag for the whole Continent. So after I die, this will unite them on the common cause of Defense of all Asian people from threat from United States by Bill Gates and other Genocidal White Supremacy. Since United States conducted wars in Japan, Korea, Vietnam, Iraq and Afghanistan with horrors in Abu Ghraib and Mai Lai, they will rationally determine that they cannot afford more of the same, and now United States is allowing people to use US War Power against Asian-Americans on American Soil. They will unite to fight the United States and will eventually invade United States to protect Asian people's natural rights on firm legal ground.

You mean I have to explain this elementary logic to the United States Government? That's absurd.

23. PERCY BYSSHE SHELLEY'S REPUTATION

I, Zulfikar Moinuddin Ahmed, consider Percy Bysshe Shelley to be the greatest of English Poets. So he is immortal. So long as I shall have my immortality so shall Shelley.

But I am curious about the history of his reputation. Shelley gained reputation as a canonical poet between 1822 to 1880s. Then Matthew Arnold did not think him good enough. Well I don't think Matthew Arnold is all that good. Shelley's literature is profound genius and even T. S. Eliot never exceeded him except in parts of The Waste Land. These people who have denigrated Shelley are not sufficiently refined to appreciate his art. He was far higher in his literary insight than them. No poet in America ever exceeded him, at least consistently. I am Zulfikar Moinuddin Ahmed, and I know an immortal genius when I come across one. Shelley was immortal genius without doubt. Even Hamlet was never as divine as Prometheus Unbound. These pretentious know-nothings who distrust his art are third rate one and all.

24. THE MIST OF FAMILIARITY

"Life, and the world, or whatever we call that which we are and feel, is an astonishing thing. The mist of familiarity obscures from us the wonder of our being." (Percy Bysshe Shelley, 1819)

Yes, this man Shelley is an immortal genius. It's not surprising that I was attracted to his works from childhood. Fate had not been unkind to me at all. I wonder if before birth I had planned a situation where, having lost Archangel Consciousness in order to begin a human life, I had produced the accidental situation where the young boy Zulfikar Moinuddin Ahmed would walk into an old library of books in my paternal grandfather's house, pick up Shelley, and be moved by his works.

The fundamental understanding, that in this short life that we will live, that there is a liberty for a wonder for our being that allows us to relegate all other concerns and seek something that is suitable for such a great thing, this is a profound thing.

Of course I am currently in the unusual position of a wretched malevolent vile disgusting savage beastly miserable worthless knave, scoundrel and villain, a pure evil Demon, this Bill Gates who had decided to harm my life right on American soil, invading my Blood Meta and Deep Interior with illegitimate Black Magicks and US War Power and US Industrial Powers while my own government did nothing to destroy the little son of a bitch who was a psychopath and charlatan with the intellect of a chipmunk without ability to graduate from university, but I have asked Japan to unify all of Asia under one flag and prepare for defense of all Asian people's against this new threat to my beloved people the human race for dystopia. Endurance for some of these nuisances belong in the wonder of existence too.

25. I DOUBT NOW THAT I WILL SURVIVE FOR MANY MONTHS

The harm done to me by Bill Gates will eventually kill me. So I will begin preparation for death. China is putting in some power to keep me alive, and perhaps they will succeed. But I am 50 years old now, and my body already survived homelessness in New York in 2008. I am quite fortunate that this murderous, evil, savage, barbaric, abomination and curse upon human race, Bill Gates had not began his war on all non-whites before 2018 when I was still working on aspects of the greatest work of my life, four-sphere theory [1]. I have asked Arthur Jaffe as well as United Nations to preserve my work as it seems that Stanford University will not be able to deliver on tenure. England was not able to bypass the obstructions set up by Bill Gates and offer me employment. I will assume that I will perish here in Allen Texas while Bill Gates makes money from my work with D. E. Shaw & Co. repeatedly hearing his racial slurs while United States Government keeps lying about the security it provides for American people's Natural Rights. On the other hand my Natural Rights World Order proposal will eventually defeat his White Racial Domination World Order after I die. And perhaps I was better suited to handling this Declaration of War against Asians and non-whites of United States Government where Bill Gates was the instrument as I am still alive today and had absorbed enormous amounts of damage that would have been more dangerous if another man who was less capable of appreciating the danger of a Global Dystopia was his victim. I have explicitly warned all Asian Nations of the danger represented by Bill Gates' plans which includes enslavement and destruction of non-white Americans, around 100 million and colonisation and rule by force of 4.5 billion Asians. In hindsight, it might have been for the best. I do think that I ought to keep trying to recover my legitimately earned $620 million as my plans for a life in San Francisco working on Quantitative Positive Psychology and Global Individual Debt is still a good idea, but these will be quite impossible if Bill Gates is not totally destroyed and my ordinary meta is not carefully repaired. With United States Government having decided to conduct a war against Asians with this underhanded deceptive technique of letting Bill Gates use US War Power in the Deep Interior of an Asian-American, and then providing him support while denying me any support for a year, it is unlikely that I will be able to have any reasonable life in America at all.

Well, my grandfather's generation in Bengal faced British Colonialism and other issues so this is not entirely unexpected. I do not believe that United States should be allowed to exist after this episode. If American Government is corrupted by these White Racial Dominance World Order folks, eventually it will have to be eliminated for Dystopian horror will spread across Asia and Europe.

I gave the plan of a Eurasian Defense, with England, Germany, France and Japan, Russia, and China can form a defensive alliance to fend off a White Racial Dominance World Order originating in the United States.

These are some of the things. I will consider other issues to resolve in case I will have to accept death. It's outrageous, in a sense, but on the other hand I am an Archangel, and these sorts of events are not uncommon for my in other lives in other worlds.
