

ZULF HAS VERY LITTLE RESPECT FOR MEN WHO ARE NOT FAITHFUL TO THEIR CHOSEN ROMANTIC PARTNER

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

1. CANONICAL VIEW

You should know who you love and want to be with and you should be with that one person. And once you find her you should shut the doors to all other women.

I find it horrible to see men who are confused about these things. I have no sympathy for men who are not sure who they love.

It's one thing if some thing goes wrong or your lover dies or whatever. But it's not respectable for me to find a confused man who is always fishing. Find the right woman; leave all others alone.

All other paths lead to deep dissatisfaction with life. It's not admirable to be alone in your late ages and still philandering with 30 women as though you're still 20. That's not 'manly'; it's precisely not adult human male. Adult human males know what they want and they love the one they love and they are sure and not confused.

2. EXAMPLE: BILL GATES TOTAL LOSER

Bill Gates' wife leaves him at 66 and he is philandering with young girls. He's a total loser. He's the archetype of what I think of as a total failure as a man. There is nothing admirable about his life. He had an opportunity to love a good woman and produce a happy life and he failed. My life has been turbulent and I have had a series of lovers in the past but I am considering seriously to settle down with Darina. She's a sweetheart. I won't be unfaithful and be a good husband and father and love her for a million years without worry or looking around. That's what I think is the work of an exemplary man.