

ZULF REVEALS HIS HONEST VIEWS ABOUT AMERICA AND WOMEN

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

I love San Francisco. People do whatever they want. They dress in all sorts of ways there. New York too. I am always quite amused by women who go around with skirts so short that you can see her pussy and panties without moving at all and showing off her cleavage with panache. They can have all the pride they want in their great expressive freedom but I am a heterosexual man who will consider them sluts and skanks. Now I am a gentleman and so I won't say all that much. I am not driven by aggressive libido. I don't look at these women and say to myself, "Wow! Let me chat her up and try to score today." But I know that men have a distribution in their aggressiveness and there is a large tail where all the men will do that. She's a slut to them just like me. That will rarely happen in the Middle East because no one wears short skirts where panties are showing and deep cut cleavage-baring clothes.

I just am surprised because all these people say "Well, we're advanced." No you're not. You don't know that male libido is just part of human nature. You want to provoke the male libido right in public and pretend that you're not sluts. Maybe you're not going to actually ever agree to a man's advances but you really think that the streets are your bedroom? Your catwalk?

I refuse to even talk to women who are unable to know how to dress in a dignified manner in public. I will reject any woman in two seconds if they want to have that 'freedom' of frank dressing. Last thing I need is to be married with children with my wife drawing out every damn sexually maladjusted pervert in the world. Who needs that? Not me.

1. MY ADVICE TO YOUNG AMERICAN WOMEN

I am 49 and I don't have children but you are probably the age that I might have had children. So listen up. You might be smart and sophisticated and know your Federico Fellini and Michelangelo Antonioni and have a mastery of Thomas Mann and know Shelley and Rilke's poetry like the back of your hands. You might be highly cultivated with a taste for French cuisine but if you dress with short skirts showing off your panties and revealing tight clothes showing your cleavage, to the public and especially men, you're a skanky slut. No one will ever find out about your exquisite cultivation because that is tasteless and undignified. So you have your choice. You can be radiant and beautiful and dignified in your public dressing and then people will think that you know your Rilke and Shelley and Thomas Mann and your Tarkovsky even if you don't. Or you can dress like a skanky slut and people will never guess those and never even ask you.
