

RACIAL SUPREMACY IS EVERYWHERE UNCOUTH PROVINCIAL AND EMBARRASSING

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

I am of Indian background. In India, and Bangladesh too, there are some people who do think that Indians are superior to all other people. They exist, and they are quite zealous in their beliefs. I won't go into any particulars. What I knew already as a toddler was that these sorts of people are not respectable in India. They are provincial and narrow-minded. They are not cool and broad-minded, not world travelers. They don't really have all sorts of artifacts from their travels to Egypt and Scandinavia.

In America, it's the same. People like Bill Gates who keep repeating 'whites are superior' are uncouth, rude, uncultured, and they may have some money but they are an embarrassment to educated cool Americans, who go to all sorts of ashrams in India, and then they go to Japan and France and pick up some Baudelaire to charm the French beauties. They avoid these rustic 'whites are superior buffoons' and quickly put on sunglasses and pretend that they didn't see these idiots.