

ZULF PREPARES TO WRITE A ROUSING SPEECH TO COMPEL US EXECUTIVE BRANCH INTO ENFORCING LAWS

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

Abraham Lincoln had it so easy compared to Zulf. He just had to deal with keeping the country together. I have to worry about the well-being of eight billion of my beloved people the human race. Now I am not in government right now, but I have to promote human race consciousness, the unity of a single human race in this primitive age when one man does not know another man is the same race without Zulf having to tell them. I have so many responsibilities. I worked for years and years to bring my beloved people great knowledge, like that Live song, "I'll be along son with medicine supposed designed to make you high." So I am doing productive things and I can't even get my own earnings in Finance, because that wretched malevolent criminal Bill Gates blockaded it. It's been a year and the wretched malevolent criminal gets treated like some sort of VIP with red carpet treatment while my Natural Rights are not even on the radar of these people at US Executive Branch. They think this is funny. I have to write a rousing speech now to compel them to execute laws of the Nation. I won't even get compensated for it. Dear reader, would you be pleased to have to write a rousing speech, taking away time from your other affairs?

Let me show you my desk, dear reader.

You see the stacks of books? I have to study them to make progress. None of them have instructions of what to do when you find that the American Executive Branch is dysfunctional and does not actually enforce National Laws. That's an unexpected problem in my life. They know that Bill Gates is a dyed-in-the-wool ruthless murderous criminal, but they don't actually enforce any laws against him. No one seems to told them that no one wants to pay taxes to fund an executive branch that does not actually want to enforce national laws. In fact, some of these books tell me that the Executive Branch does enforce National Laws. How would you feel if, on top of all the other problems in your life, you have to babysit the US Executive Branch and tell them that they are supposed to enforce National Laws against criminals?

So now I have to think about some sort of rousing speech I can write to get them to do what they were supposed to have been doing for 245 years. Now I was born in 1973. I was given to believe that US Executive Branch enforces national laws all the way before I came to the United States in 1987. It's just a devastating blow to me. I was reliant on the US Executive Branch executing laws. I always told people, "You see, US Executive Branch is professional and is tasked to enforce the laws Congress passes." Now I am too embarrassed to show my face to these people. That's very bad. Why don't the US Executive Branch just enforce laws instead of embarrassing Zulf? Zulf could have easily waited, found out that US Executive Branch does not even want to enforce the laws, and want to make a mockery of the principles of American government. Then I could have told people, "Ha ha ha. You think that the US Executive Branch is enforcing national laws, but that's just a ruse. They are actually there to ensure that murderers can murder without any distraction." I feel pretty foolish now. At least then I could have seemed cool and cynical. Now I will just look naive and stupid.
