USE OF DIFFUSE UNNAMED EXTREME MOCKERY AS A POLITICAL TOOL

ZULFIKAR MOINUDDIN AHMED

Bill Gates is interested in invoking ethnic loyalty to murder me and harm me while simultaneously corrupting the United States Declaration of Independence Foundation. I will use unnamed US White Generals as example.

First, let us be clear that we use unnamed White Generals for two strategic reasons. First, we want all White Generals to be affected; second, we do not want to choose specific White Generals. Let me repeat this. We want all white generals in our scope of attacks; and we do not want to choose the actual names. My political strategies are far superior to those who want to 'name names' and shame particular people in public. That is valuable at a lower level of political warfare.

Here what is going for Bill Gates is the feeling of ethnic loyalty among White Generals. I need something to counter his advantage here.

Let us then delve into the mockery.

1. Message of August 22 2021

THESE DELUDED NUMSKULL WHITE GENERALS BACKING BILL GATES ARE SUICIDAL NUTCASES August 22, 2021 Look you mother fucking stupid cunt white generals supporting Bill Gates because 'he's white', I invoked US Declaration you stupid illiterate fucks. You want to bet that you will be slaughtered and sacrifice your blood and still be the bad guys after any conflict ends? Has any conflict in America involving US Declaration ever ended against the US Declaration? You're generals? Who gave you a goddam elementary school degree exactly? The state of make believe? What the fuck is wrong with these numbskulls?

2. New Elements

My key new invention here is "You're generals? Who gave you a goddam elementary school degree exactly? The state of make believe?" This is a new invention and was not taken from any stand-up routine. This is quite funny word-play and will threaten the public respectability of any White General named openly because they will be mocked in public everywhere they go due to the strength of this word-play. The threat here is to the psychological need for Respect that is universal.

Notice the tension that is implied: on one hand many White Generals might have some emotional ties to ethnic loyalty and might side with Bill Gates as a white man in conflict with a non-white American. This has some strength. On the other hand, I produced a counter-threat, that the cost of responding to the call of Bill Gates is loss of public respectability. Here my strategy is the winner.

3. Why My Strategy Is The Winner

Psychological need for Respect is high among White Generals because they will lose self-esteem fast and have their own psyche threatened if public shows contemptuous mockery the moment their faces occur. This is much more costly for their self-interest than the gains of their loyal character for ethnic kinship. My strategy wins handily here.

4. Problems of Generalisability

The mockery here can be generalised but loses power if used against a very large group of white US Government officials, for then there is a communal guard for this. Respectability reduction is reduced too much. It is best to generalise to only the highest echelon officials of US Government, where the accusation of having such low quality education that only the "state of make believe" would have provided it reduces their Respect substantially enough to hurt their psychological well-being. On the other hand, my mockery is original and due to myself only. Therefore there is a small window of opportunity to prevent Bill Gates from using ethnic loyalty long enough so that he is slaughtered before there can be any response from people feeling affinity for him.

Now Bill Gates is truely thoroughly evil and malevolent criminal, so white people generally will abandon him anyway, so he has a short window of opportunity before all calls for ethnic loyalty will fail for him.

This is mortal Kombat of Zulf versus Bill in action.