Let S be Life Satisfaction, H Happiness, FI family important, NFI family not important. We have the following empirical estimates.

$$
\begin{aligned}
P(H|FI) &= 0.8675 \\
P(H|NFI) &= 0.6825 \\
P(S|FI) &= 0.217 \\
P(S|NFI) &= 0.389
\end{aligned}
$$

The divergence here in Happiness and Life Satisfaction is remarkable, and I am quite fortunate to find this very intriguing phenomenon. Life Satisfaction of Human Beings remains a deep mystery of Nature and this anomalous finding might lead us to understand the phenomenon better. One of the great problems of this entire Age is that Life Satisfaction for a vast majority of Human Race is dismal. Our discovery shows clearly that we ought not consider Life Satisfaction simply a rough proxy for Feelings of Happiness at all. They behave quite differently.
